

The Daily Market Report

PORTLAND, Nov. 19.—The market for the time is well supplied with practically everything in the country produce list, and in some lines the supplies are over-large, with the trade verging toward weakness. This is particularly the case with chickens, receipts of which have been steadily increasing since the first of the week. Dealers were forced to carry over a considerable portion of yesterday's arrivals, and these, with today's receipts, made the market top-heavy. Both hens and chickens today moved at 12 to 12½c, but some shading of prices was reported. For ducks and geese there was the usual limited inquiry at yesterday's prices, and the supply was more than sufficient for the demand. In turkeys, both live and dressed, the market dragged, the reason being that Thanksgiving day is so near. With the holiday only a week distant, consumers are little disposed to buy turkeys now and dealers reported, but little interest in either live birds, at 17 to 18 cents, or dressed stock at 20 cents.

Colds and Croup in Children.

"My little girl is subject to colds," says Mrs. Wm. H. Serig, No. 41 Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and a terrible cough but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup." This remedy is for sale by Frank Hart and leading druggists.

A SCIENTIFIC RUBE.

Knew More Than the Expert When It Came to Local Conditions.

"We were sitting around the stove in the bar of the little hotel in a Maine town," writes an electrical salesman in the Electrical Review, "when the electric lights flickered and went out."

"From the darkness came a solemn voice that said: 'Electric lights all out, b'gosh, and yet it ain't blown' hard, either. Something's happened to the dynamo, maybe.'"

"I had been selling electrical supplies to the little lighting companies for several months, but I had never heard this particular idea expressed before."

"I laughed long and loud and was all the more amused when no one joined me."

"After they had lighted a big kero-sene lamp I proceeded to explain to the crowd that incandescent lamps can't be blown out by the wind. When I had finished the old Rube who had commented on the light said: 'Look here, young man, if you knew a little something about local conditions and about your own business you'd know that the wires in this township are hung up slack on the poles in some places and that they get to sagging in a good stiff breeze. When they do there's a short circuit that puts the line out of business.'"

The Original Almack's.

The original Almack's club in London, afterward known as Willis' rooms, had a curious origin. It began as a tavern, started by Lord Butts' butler, McCall, who proposed to give it his own name, McCall's, but his friends warned him that the tremendous unpopularity of Scots in London at that time, for which McCall's master was largely responsible, would spell ruin to an establishment so called. "Very well," said McCall, "I will call it Almack's." The present Almack's club is a more fashionable organization which chose to adopt the old name.
